WHITE SOX SHUT OUT NATIONALS IN SIZZLING GAME. COULDN'T HIT ED WALSH WITH MEN ON BASES

CHICAGO, Ill., September 19.-Amic war and kicking, hard fighting and allround strife of the most joyous kind. Washington fell again before the Sox yesterday, getting shut out in a game that only went to show the greatness of young Walter Johnson, even though he was defeated. "Wonderful Walter" held the Sox to three hits, gave only one ticket and kept them guessing at all stages. Luck was against him-luck and a combination of one two-bagger with two succeeding plays that advanced the runner from secand base to home station. Walsh was rapped much harder and gave three passes, but the luck was all his, and nobody scored on his delivery, though they kept coming near it, very near it. Twice Washington runners perished at the plate.

Just before the battle Mother Canillon laid off Delehanty for the balance of the trip, under full salary. Joe's action is one of the strangest ever recorded in the annals of base ball. He has decided to deliberately weaken the Washington team so as to give all the western clubs an equal whack at him. If Delehanty rannot play in Cleveland, he will not be played in any other city. Rather than give Cleveland such an advantage, Cantillon takes Delehanty out of the line-up for keeps, and will go against Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis with his weakened forces. "It's a fair deal to everybody, sald Cantillon, "and also a rather emphatic protest against Ban Johnson's

While the crowd, of course, was pulling hard for the Sox, they could not elp cheering the work of the visitors, and Walter Johnson was pronounced the grandest young pitcher of the season. Only one run came over in all the turnoil of the afternoon. That one run, bearing a Chicago label, slipped over in the seventh round. John Anderson, who is still full of vengeful thoughts concerning Washington and Cantillon and never lets a good chance for gloating get away, started the Sox half of this spasm with a murderous biff into left, which ran along the wall and netted John two bases. Davis grounded to Freeman, who had his choice either to step back to first and stop the batter or throw to third and get tated, threw and got nobody. Foolish Freeman. With no one out in the fifth, Freeman singled and McBride sacrificed. Street Janned, and Johnson cricketed one through the apex of the diamond. Freeman took a plunge for home, although Davis was holding the ball on second.

Two passes and a hit by McBride filled the sacks, with two out, in the seventh, but Johnson, though great in pitching. could not deliver as a batter, fanning beautifully. The big noise of the day came off in the eighth. With one gone, Ganley drew a pass and Unglaub singled. Cates, subbing for Delehanty, had been an absentee with the stick, and Cantillon sent up Warner. Jack hit right at Walsh, who wheeled and trapped Ganley off the line. After much dancing Bob was run down. Unglaub, meanwhile, had come round to third, and now, seeing the plate unguarded, broke for home. Walsh got in front of him and they crashed together mightily. Walsh was sent rolling over and over, but held the ball. As soon as he got up, big Ed wanted to fight. Before being impossible to miss it, but several players split them out, and the noise died down. Neither side did anything further, and so the battle ended.

for the mill, and had to concede everything to Britt to get him into the ring. Dorbert in the last three or four days took off nine pounds in his training to make 121 pounds, the stipulated weight for the mill. At the welghing time Britt refused to weigh in, as before the mill the representative of Britt failed to cover Dorbert's forfeit. Dorbert was under weight, and it was the consensus of opinion that Britt was several pounds over. In making the match Dorbert had to agree to let Britt take 65 per cent, win, lose or draw.

The semi-wind-up was a hard battle. It was between two Washington colored men, Kid Gordon and Kid Peyton. In the second round, after some hard milling, Peyton knocked out Gordon.
